

Kansas State University Libraries
New Prairie Press

Symphony in the Flint Hills Field Journal

Realization

Symphony in the Flint Hills, Inc.

Follow this and additional works at: <https://newprairiepress.org/sfh>

Recommended Citation

Symphony in the Flint Hills, Inc. (2019). "Realization," Symphony in the Flint Hills Field Journal.
<https://newprairiepress.org/sfh/2019/realization/1>

To order hard copies of the Field Journals, go to shop.symphonyintheflinthills.org.

The Field Journals are made possible in part with funding from the Fred C. and Mary R. Koch Foundation.

This Event is brought to you for free and open access by the Conferences at New Prairie Press. It has been accepted for inclusion in Symphony in the Flint Hills Field Journal by an authorized administrator of New Prairie Press. For more information, please contact cads@k-state.edu.

REALIZATION

Now we have electric lights and the stars are hard to see. At sea we hide in luxurious cabins and do not even question the machinery which holds us steadily on our course.

Annie Jump Cannon, 1924.

OPPOSITE PAGE

On today's walk I found that the coldlife aliens who inhabit the deep space between the stars are using a comet as shield so that they can come say hi

Mike Miller

Despite our differences, people from all walks of life—rural and urban—have always shared the same sky. But for the first time in human history, there are people in the world who have never seen the stars. We increasingly rely on man-made technology to maintain our course, but what happens when the machinery fails us? How will we navigate our way to freedom if we cannot see the stars, let alone understand how to navigate by them? If we don't take hold of our own destiny, it will be decided for us. Like those who came before us, we must look to the stars, align ourselves, and forge our own path to the future.

Jump!Star Dreams
Connie Bonfy